COAL PRICE QUIZ COMES TO END

Operators Books Checked by Federal Agents in Nation Wide Probe—Further Action Held Up.

Investigation of books of coal operators in Louisville, who have mine holdings in Eastern Kentucky, has been completed by Department of Justice agents. The investigation commenced three weeks ago and is said to be a part of a nation wide investigation of prices being charged for coal at the mines.

It was said that should indictments be returned they would be issued in the Eastern district of Kentucky. Inquiry into the selling price of coal met with no opposition on the part of dealers. It was said, and books were placed in the hands of the agents as soon as requests were presented at the offices of the corporations.

Companies known to have been investigated here are the Harlan Coal Company, North Jelico Coal Company, and the R. C. Tway Coal Company. The investigation by the agents covered the period of June and part of July. Nature of the data collected was not divulged.

W. V. Gregory, United States District Attorney, said that indictments under the Lever Act would not be possible until the United States Supreme Court passed on its constitutionality, as it has been declared unenforceable by Judge Walter Evans of the Federal District Court, Louisville. Prosecutions may be instigated as soon as the Supreme Court decides the case. Mr. Gregory said, should investigation disclose alleged profiteering.

The investigation came entirely through Federal channels, it is said, and has no connection with work being done by M. H. Kendrick of the Kentucky Fair Price Commission.

Kentucky coal fields have been divided into four districts in the report of the investigators. In the first district, known as the Western Kentucky fields, costs per ton were, distributed as follows: Labor $1.49, supplies $3 cents, general expense $3 cents; total $1.55; profit $2.02; profit margin $3 cents, making a selling price from operator to dealer of $2.35 a ton at the mine.

By adding the 14 per cent wage increase effective April 1 and allowing the marginal profit of 33 cents a ton, the price of the coal is brought to $2.56. The price charged to operators in the Western Kentucky fields is reported to be as high as $5.00 per ton.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE TRAINING

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 4.—In order to meet the requirements for teaching vocational agriculture in the high schools of Kentucky, twenty-eight men matriculated in the summer school, University of Kentucky, and received special training in fruit growing, farm management, vegetable gardening, feed and feeding, breeds and types of farm animals.

The state plans for vocational agriculture to set up certain standards for vocational teachers. Some of the men required to teach agriculture in high schools do not meet all the requirements as yet and the value of the six weeks training for these men is such that each year the enrollment for these special classes is increased.

RAISING THE DAIRY HEIFER

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Circular no. 80 prepared by J. R. Dawson of the College of Agriculture, Extension Division, which may be obtained from the Kentucky Experiment Station, presents for consideration some of the chief problems in dairying and suggests for their solution a discussion of what is done when the milk is sold and when skim milk is available. Extensive consideration is given in the circular to winter rations for dairy heifers and to other practical winter rations.

BEWARE OF LEAKS

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Before canning, a test should be made for leaks in a screw jar top by placing the top on the jar without the rubber, according to the Home Economics department, College of Agriculture. If the thumb nail can be inserted between top and glass the top is usually defective. Place rubber and top in position and screw down lightly. Pull rubber from position. Release. If the rubber returns to position, the top is defective.

GRAVE YARD CLEANING

On Saturday, August 14 the Crooked Creek Graveyard will be cleaned off. All interested people come with working tools and dinner baskets.

LOSE CLOSE GAME TO MORTONS GAP

In one of the closest and most exciting games on the home lot this year Marion lost to Mortons Gap yesterday by the score of 2 to 1.

Marion's only run was the result of Frazier pulling one over the center fielder's head and legging it all the way home, coming in standing up. Hughes, a former Weston boy, pitched for Marion and with the exception of a fluke home run in the eighth off him was never in danger of being scored on except when Chestnut was on the bases. This pesky young man who played third for the visitors insisted on getting around to his playing position every time he came to bat, securing once on a fielders choice, McConnell making a vain effort to get him on a sharp grounder.

The Marion team supported Hughes superbly, Guyer cutting off a run with a perfect throw from deep center. Felix made a beautiful shoe-string catch of a liner from Gossage's bat. Meschum got two put-outs all by himself in a double play and Frazier showed that he can play second base as good as he can anywhere else. He is one of the best all around players in this end of the state. McConnell served very acceptably on first, digging them out of the dirt like an old timer. Driskill caught his usual steady game, and Lamb and Crawford made a nice catch each after a hard run. The shortstop was a youngster from Itasca Mines and though he made a couple of errors in his anxiety has the earmarks of a ball player.

Mortons Gap has a mighty good ball club and a gentlemanly bunch of players. They played hard, fielded perfectly and played ball to win without "rag chewing". Gossage pitched for them and needless to say it was well done.

The Marion team goes to Dyersburg, Tenn., next week for a series of three games.

BURIED HERE

The remains of Mrs. Zylla Moore Cardin arrived Friday morning and were laid to rest in Mapleview Cemetery by the side of her husband, Mr. A. H. Cardin.

Mrs. Cardin was Miss Zylla Moore before her marriage and was born and reared in Sherman Texas. She was spending the summer at Chautauque, N. Y., where she became ill and passed away before the arrival of her husband.

She was a talented reader and has done typewriting and Chautauque work. Rather reserved in her nature, Mrs. Cardin made friends slowly but those who knew her best loved her best and she has left many warm friends to mourn her death.

Her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Swarts and two brothers, Messrs. U. S. and E. V. Moore attended the funeral and interment.

"GUN TOTING" MUST STOP

Illthumna Gives Mastery to Law Over Tradition in Long Struggle

FRANKFORT KY., Aug. 4.—Law triumphed over tradition when Governor Morrow announced that hereafter all "pistol toters" must serve jail sentences.

His ultimatum contained in a formal statement asking assistance of courts and officials in redeeming "the State from the disgrace of its homicides" is the sequel to a long contest for mastery of statute over precedent. Until eight years ago openly tolerated through weakness of the statute, and since then winked at despite passage of a drastic law providing a jail sentence and disfranchisement for two years, the habit of carrying a pistol on the hip is to pass the way of its rear pocket contemporary, the flask.

Pardons Have Been Frequent

After the 1912 Legislature, in response to urging of the bench, enacted the law jail offenders, records show that Governor McCreary, under whose regime it was passed, still heeded the custom of another day. Nearly all "comers" were pardoned. His successors in office apparently applied the "doctrine of contemporaneous construction" to applications for clemency.

In at least one case in this district a pardon was obtained by telephone within a hour after sentence was pronounced.

As a result of this situation a bill was introduced but failed passage, in the last Legislature to repeal the law and make the offense a misdemeanor to obtain more permanent conviction. It is said too, that frequently "pistol toters" are arranged on charges of simple breach of the peace and thus get off with small terms.

Morrow to Probe Laziness

Governor Morrow declares that not only will he see that those convicted serve out their terms but he will investigate any reports that lines are being collected in lieu of the full penalty. His statement follows:

"The habit of carrying pistols in Kentucky must be destroyed. The State has suffered terribly in the past from this vicious, cowardly and altogether indefensible habit. I do not intend to use the power of the Governor to promote and encourage this habit by pardoning those who have been found guilty and have been given under the law jail sentences and for a second offense disfranchisement, but I do propose to uphold and encourage the law and insist upon its enforcement and to deny promptly applications for pardon.

"Pistol carrying promotes homicide. It begets a desire to use the weapon carried. It makes men murderers in their minds and hearts before they carry the deed into execution.

Asks Help of Officials

"In order to carry the law into full execution I ask the assistance and co-operation of Circuit Judges and Commonwealth Attorneys and request that they see to it that concealed weapon cases are not disguised and presented under other charges, but that in all cases the full sentence shall be enforced.

"I promise them that I will uphold their judgments. The state can be redeemed from the disgrace of its homicides by striking out one of the evils which produce the disgrace, the indiscriminate carrying of weapons by which human life is to be taken. "The pistol carrier is not a good citizen, is not desirable and on the contrary is a menace to good order and to public safety."

FINDS SPLENDID VEIN

Mr. J. M. Parsons, who has been prospecting for spar on Mr. F. G. Cox farm in the western portion of the county has recently struck a splendid vein of spar. The vein is six feet high and twenty-six feet in depth and is getting stronger and contains high grade acid spar.

It is interesting to learn of the new finds in spar, as spar mining has been one of the county's most paying industries, and should be encouraged by all. And when the county builds metal roads it is believed the spar mining industry will be developed to much greater extent.

RAIL ROAD FARES WILL GO UP

Carriers to File Blanket Schedules at Once; Freight Rates Up August Twenty-Fifth.

WASHINGTON—Tariff experts of the railroads expect to be able to file blanket schedules with the Interstate Commerce Commission making the increased passenger fares effective August 20, and the new freight rates effective August 25, it was stated by Alfred P. Thomas, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives.

Simultaneously with the effectiveness of passenger fares, the increases in the charges for Pullman travel and the new rates on excess baggage and milk also will be put in force.

Railroad rate experts have begun the preparation of blanket rate schedules increasing the transportation costs on a percentage basis. These will be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission five days prior to the proposed effective dates.

The rate sheets will be supplemented by printed tariffs containing rates for all territories and on all commodities as soon as the physical task of working out the multitudinous details can be accomplished.

Until this work is done, local rail officials will compute the new rates and charges for their respective territories on the basis of the existing rates plus the percentage increase authorized by the commission.

While this method of putting new rates into effect would be unusual, railroad officials pointed to the suggestion of the commission that the higher charges be put in force "on as early a date as practicable."

RIVALS WILL SUPPORT COX

Palmer Comes to Front and It Is Expected Bryan Will Also Be Available

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Governor Cox will have the active support on the stump of the men who contested with him for the Democratic Presidential nomination. There will be no sulking in the camp but all the opposing candidates are to "take the stump" in the speaking campaign for Governor Cox. There has been a good deal of speculation as to Attorney General Palmer's attitude, which is cleared up by an interview given by him at Stroudsville, Pa., in which he says he will be actively in the campaign for Governor Cox. William G. McAdoo has volunteered his services as a speaker to the limit, and Senator Owen of Oklahoma called on Senator Harrison, chairman of the Speakers Bureau, and volunteered his "undivided services until election day" on the stump. Senator Harrison also has assurance that William J. Bryan will be available as a speaker in the campaign.

A word to the wise is sufficient. To the fool it is one too many.

You can call some people hard you may give deadly offense. The truth is never an insult.

twenty-five. It is—with a wedding ring.

Proper Care of Tools.

All good tools should be wrapped up, otherwise they will rust, and rust kills their cutting edges. The careful carpenter wraps his tools in a ful chauffeur wraps all polished tools

before putting them in the tool box
and keeps them away from the storage battery, the fumes of which will quickly rust them.

Agricultural Column

By G. M. GUMBERT

Last week Dr. Frazer fulfilled an old promise and took me out to his farm. When you have read this article I believe you will agree with me that the doctor is also a farmer.
He. Frazer owns 270 acres of land which he bought in separate tracts
but has now converted into one farm.
He has enough bottom land for corn and pastures his rolling land to great advantage. Dr. Frazer was probably the first farmer in the county to use lime on his land. He still uses lime for the big clover crops that he cuts are a revelation. Some of this land was badly run down but after using lime to grow clover and then feeding the clover and returning the manure he has doubled his production. Doctor says that he has just begun and I know that he has made a good start. His stock includes forty two head of cattle, a splendid registered Hereford bull, one registered Kankakee ram, six ewes and sixteen registered big boned spotted Poland China hogs. Among this number is a registered boar, one year old that is a splendid individual as I have ever seen and I have seen some good ones! This boar if fat would weigh six hundred pounds. He has a splendid back broad, long and with not too much arch. He shows plenty of scale and stands well up off the ground on strong posterns.
Give Doctor a little more time and he will build on this foundation. I haven't been told so but I know the doctor's managements on the farm are Carl and Robert.

Alfalfa could be made to grow
probably on nearly every Crittenden farm. I do not believe every farm should have a large acreage but I do believe most farms should have from one to three acres. There is nothing mysterious about the needs of alfalfa but its requirements
should be known and met else failure is sure to result.

What alfalfa wants: Seed free
weeds, well drained soil, sweet soil,
well prepared seed bed, ground free
from weeds, inoculation no pasturing. Supply these needs and it is as sure as any crop. What alfalfa does: Leads in yield per acre, leads in feeding value, leads as a soil enricher, leads as a soil enricher, leads as a ration balancer, furnishes cheapest source of protein, takes free
nitrogen from the air, reduces grain
bills, increases farm values, doubles profits. An acre of alfalfa will yield three times as much hay as an acre of red top and the hay will be again as rich in protein. The protein and mineral contents of alfalfa is very important for growing animals.

Don't forget the Farm Bureau meeting next Saturday will be held in the High School auditorium at one thirty. Mr. W. T. Harris of Morganfield will give an address explaining the Farm Bureau movement.
I especially urge every farmer in the county to be present because this is a meeting for you and there is nothing secret about it.

To Dream of a Parrot.

A parrot in one's dreams is a warning to watch out, for among your friends is some one not true to you.
If the parrot is in a cage, it's a sign a secret of yours will be revealed by some one whom you trusted. But if you hear a parrot talk in your dreams, listen closely to it, for it is supposed that advice is often given in this way. —Chicago Herald and Ex-

"John Smith"

By Alvah J. Garth

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

It was like a colony of ants suddenly disturbed by an upheaval of the family bill. If some one had dropped a bomb into the one industrial plant of Crofton it could not have caused more general disorder. For twenty-five years manager for John Rolfe, a city millionaire, James Dustin had died, and there was not an employee who did not feel that the even, pleasant tenor of his life was about to be disrupted.

The Star Cereal Mills represented an investment of the Rolfe family, to which, amid multifarious holdings, they paid little attention. James Dustin was a relative of the family, and the business was started primarily to find a place for him. He had filled it well, he had poured liberal dividends
uninterruptedly into the Rolfe coffers.
Possessed of a helpful, sympathetic spirit, he had built up about him homes that were happy, hearts that loved and revered him.

There had been some dissatisfaction
among the employees for a year preceding the death of Dustin. He had been falling for some time and had to take long vacations. A distant relative had appeared on the scene. He was a man about thirty-five, with a shrewd, fox face, shifty eyes and a boastful, overbearing manner that awed the timid and irritated
those who saw deeper into the shallow nature. Greg Varney was able to influence some big orders for the concern, but outside of that little bit
but disturb the perfect system that Dustin had inaugurated.

"Too slow, altogether too slow," Varney had commented. "This has got to be a regular Rip Van Winkle establishment. I'm the one that put the 'fish' into efficiency in the biggest wholesale fur house in Chicago, and I'd like now to put 'men' into management here. You've got too many fossils on the payroll. I'd do big things if I was in charge."

There was only one possible rival in the race for promotion, and this was Walter Barton. He was just of age, his father had been one of the first employees in the business, and the son had filled his place after his death.
Dustin had advanced him rapidly,
and but for his youth he would have been selected as assistant instead of Varney. His sister, Gloria, a beautiful girl of eighteen, had been his guide
and genius in home life and in encouraging his honorable ambitions to get on in the world.

Gloria Barton had little interest in those of the opposite sex. One day, however, there was a token of more than ordinary interest in her eyes as Walter came into the house, bidding good-by to a young man whom she had never seen before.

"Who was that?" she inquired.
"John Smith, representing Mr. Rolfe through his lawyers," replied Walter.
"He has just come to look over the mills. He has been asking about the business two hours with Varney."

The information stirred up Gloria more than she betrayed. Perhaps the whole future business career of her beloved brother depended upon the decision of this very unassuming stranger with a very common name. She was openly surprised and secretly glad when there appeared at the little cottage the next morning John Smith in person.

He introduced himself in a friendly, pleasant manner that impressed her at once. She invited him into the house and was almost dumbfounded as he sat at once.

"Miss Barton, I feel that I can trust
you with a secret and I must impart
the same to you. In order to obtain your counsel and cooperation, which I very much need, I am not Mr. John Smith, but Allen Rolfe, the son of the owner of the mills here. My purpose in coming under a false name is to learn just how a fair stand here, as an outsider. I must tell you that Crofton has been a sort of hobby with my father. He loves to dream of this quiet, happy little community of workers whom he has benefited, and perhaps some day he may retire to it as a sort of Arcadia in his old age. The financed end is all staid and it has always been so. His main thought is of preserving the business with happy, contented workers; a sort of oasis in the midst of the usually arid business desert. Your father was a pioneer in our service. Your brother and yourself are probably more familiar with the situation than any others. Please be frank and open with me in advising entirely on the side of those in our service."

It was three hours later when Allen Rolfe left the Barton home. He had been charmed by the intelligence and straightforwardness of this lovely hostess as he contrasted her kindly, unselfish regard for the wellbeing of the mill workers with the prejudices
and personal aggrandizement of Varney. The young man made up his mind fully as to what he would decide regarding the new management.

Bluntly he told Varney that he would recommend Walter Barton for the vacant post. The unwitting schemer submitted to the fate with his usual self-assurance. He glanced out at his diminutive car on the street.

"All right," he observed. "I fancy
I had better put the 'run' into my run-
about, and hunt a new job."

And Allen Rolfe turned his thoughts
in a new direction. "I'm glad I came,"
he told himself "just to get sake and that of the pretty
out new manager."

glad to be with this people and proud to see the new house of wor-

few months.

Emmaus church and the people in that vicinity hold in my memory a very sacred recollection of hygone days, for it was at old Emmaus in 1901 that I first realized the hope of a Christian Life and the joy that awaits the children of God. I do not get to be with these people often as I have gotten so far away from them but nevertheless I have never gone so far as not to think of them
and my prayers are for them.

May they succeed in every underdoth the upright in heart and may they some day hear that welcome

DAIRY FACTS

VALUE OF BULL ASSOCIATION

Farmers Enabled to Co-Operate in Purchase and Use of Sire at Lowest Expense.

(By R. W. CLARK, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.)
The bull association is strictly a co-operative enterprise. Five, eight, or ten farmers in a neighborhood unite in the purchase and use of a bull. The number of farmers in a community proposition like this depends upon the number of cows each keeps and proximity to each other. A local organization like this is called a "block." There may be other "blocks" in the same township or county, all operating under the same constitution and by-laws. After a bull has been used two years or so in one "block" he is exchanged for another bull in one of the blocks.

Through this kind of an organization, the purchase price of the bull per farmer is low. The cost of the keep of the bull is distributed among a larger number of people, only good bulls are used and in-breeding is avoided.

Farmers should look into this proposition. It means much to them.

DO AWAY WITH SCRUB STOCK

Registered Bull Calf Can Be Obtained at Reasonable Figure—Milk Flow Increased.

(By O. H. HANSEN of the dairy husbandry division, Minnesota College of Agriculture.)

Why should anyone be satisfied with scrub cattle? It is true there are not enough purebreds for all, but the herds from a scrub herd will be wonderfully improved over their dams if they are bred by a good purebred bull from a productive dam. A registered bull calf can be had at a reasonable price from a dam which has made a creditable record, and the offspring of such a bull proves the wisdom of the investment. It is a known fact that in many cases the milk produced by the heifer of such a bull is more than double that of the dam. Neither these animals nor their offspring will ever be purebred, but the continued use of a first-class registered dairy bull of the same breed will in a few years result in a herd that may equal in production many purebred herds.

INCREASING VALUE OF COWS

Gain of 58 Per Cent in Five Years Is Shown by Reports of Bureau of Crop Estimates.

The farm cow that gives milk for human food stands first, with a total value of $2,022,000,000, as compared with other classes of farm animals for January 1, 1920, by the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture. Not even the total value of all other cattle is equal to the value of the dairy cow. The average price per head of milk cows in this country has increased from $58.25, since January 1, 1915, to $91.95, the average for 1919, or a gain of 58 per cent in five years, according to the bureau.

Average Price of Milk Cows Per Head Has Increased From $58.25 in 1915 to $91.95 in 1919.

PUREBRED SIRE IS VALUABLE

First Cross on Average Herd Increased Income $32 Per Cow in Province of Ontario.

The first cross of a purebred bull on the average dairy herd increased the income $32 per cow. These figures were secured in the province of Ontario in comparison of 141 herds using grade bulls and 31 using purebreds. Mr. Rex E. Willard of the farm management department of the North Dakota Agricultural College, in applying these figures to North Dakota shows that if one farmer with 20 cows using grade bulls received an income of $1,080, his neighbor with 20 cows but who began using purebred bulls five years ago should receive $2,520, or $1,440 more.

WASH MILK BOTTLE WELL

If Allowed to Stand It Should Be Filled With Water to Prevent Casein From Hardening.

The milk bottle if not washed as soon as emptied should be filled with cold or lukewarm water till it is washed. The aluminum and enamel harden and stick fast when they dry as well as when heated. So that if hot water is poured in the bottle or can that has had milk in it the aluminum and enamel will harden and stick. After washing with lukewarm water use hot water which removes the fat and residue in boiling water or steam to kill the bacteria. Extension Division, North Dakota Agricultural College.

Wide Choice Afforded.

Edward had an uncle who owned a grocery and market. On Saturdays it was Edward's delight to go there to help. A neighbor chanced in, and finding Edward there, she thought she would find out how much the little fellow knew about business and said: "Ed, have you chickens today?" The youngster's reply was: "Yep, we have all kinds, alive, dead, dressed and undressed."

FARM STOCK

KEEPING SHEEP FOR MUTTON

There Are Many Areas Where Animals Could Be Kept to Advantage for Meat and Wool.

Sheep are not very generally kept on farms for supplying the home family with meat. There are many areas, especially in hilly or mountainous regions, where nearly every farm could keep a few mutton sheep to advantage. Boys' and girls' clubs in some parts of the country have done much to foster home production of mutton. Sheep naturally graze over rather wide areas and seek variety of plants.

Sheep Are Useful in Pasture. Ot Weeds in Standing Corn After Cutting Stops.

This habit particularly adapts them to being kept in large numbers on lands of sparse vegetation or furnishing a variety of grasses or other plants, says the United States department of agriculture. They do better on short and thin grasses than on coarse or high feed. They will eat a good deal of brush and, if confined to small areas, will do a fair job at cleaning up land. When used in this way, or on land producing brush only, they can not be expected to prove very satisfactory in the production of good lambs or good wool.

PROPER CARE OF YOUNG PIGS

First Thing to Be Done Is to Cut Off Four Sharp, Hard Tusks—Never Pull Them.

Soon after pigs are born, the four sharp, hard tusks, two in the upper and two in the lower jaws should be cut off. Take a pair of nippers and cut the tusks off, but not too near the gums. If these tusks cut the sow's teats, make them sore and she will not let the pigs suck. Then, also, the pigs cut themselves with these tusks, and sometimes stick them through their tongues, cannot suck, and starve. They cause sore mouths. They are soft and easily removed.

A pair of sharp scissors will cut them easily but under no circumstances should they be pulled out. If it is seen that a pig is getting too fat, it is evidence that it is holding its tusks. To prevent this, take a sharp knife and cut its tusks in two or three places, deep enough to make it sore and it will stop taking more than its share.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR PROFITS

Only About 4 or 5 Per Cent of Live Stock Is Purebred and Demand Steadily Growing.

There are many opportunities for good profits in the breeding of purebred live stock. When it is considered that only about 4 or 5 per cent of all live stock is purebred and that the demand for better stock is steadily growing it must be clear that there is still room for capable men with a love for live stock to make breeding a profitable business. But the man who is not prepared either through training or inclination to devote a large part of his time to the care and management of his stock is surely making a mistake to engage in the purebred business.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Self-feeders save time and labor in feeding value.

The hog is the cheapest producer of animal fat.

No animal parasite is quite so persistent as the hog louse.

With the sow particularly good feeding and plenty of exercise are important.

If proper care is given the ewe previous to lambing many losses can be prevented.

In the selection of the brood sow it is essential that uniformity of size and quality be maintained.

Neoplasms known in pigs as eye moths, lung moths and shuffles, is controlled by cleaning and disinfecting house and to the places and isolating them if possible.

Wife Is Boss in Abyssinia. Abyssinia, it is said, gives great authority to the wife. It is her privilege to abuse her husband and when divorce is at pleasure, whereas the husband must show cause if he wishes to divorce his wife.

—FOR SALE—One pair of good mules. Will sell cheap for cash or on time, any way to suit purchaser, or would trade for hogs. C. E. CLARK, Phone 12-24, Topeka, Ky. Bx 86 4

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE PAST

Peculiar Beliefs That Not So Very Many Years Ago Had Almost Universal Credence.

A reader furnishes us with a list of old superstitions which were part of our folk lore in this part of the country before we had to have folk lore societies to preserve this sort of thing:

A rooster crowing at the front door meant a visitor coming.

A twig catching a young lady's dress meant a leech.

An itching ear meant that some one was talking about you.

To turn back after starting meant bad luck.

Opening an umbrella in the house meant bad luck to the house.

A measuring worm on a woman's frock meant a new dress.

An itching left hand meant that you would marry soon.

An itching right hand meant that you would shake hands with a stranger.

Seeing the new moon over the left shoulder meant one would soon get money.

Probably most of us are superstitious about the number 13. Just as people were a long time ago, our own superstitious still assume a subsequent generation, as those recalled by our reader amuse us. Only a subsequent generation can safely laugh at superstitions. Socrates was put to death for laughing at some of the superstitions of the Greeks. Let us, then, laugh at these and take the superstitions of our own time as seriously as we please.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

PEAK WHERE NOAH LANDED

Mount Ararat, in Northwestern Persia, Is Now Part of a Recently Created "Buffer" State.

Youthful students of sacred history, if they will look up the map of the near East, will find in the extreme northwestern part of Persia a mountain peak marked Mount Ararat. That should give them a fine starting point, for they will remember that it was on Mount Ararat that Noah, in the Biblical account, landed. Mount Ararat is the loftiest peak in Azerbaijan, 17,000 feet above sea level, but if they have neglected news from Europe they may not know that Azerbaijan is a new republic established by the political strife in eastern Europe in the expectation that it will act as a political and military buffer for some of the great nations.

The inhabitants of Azerbaijan are Persians, Armenians, Kurds, Tartars and Arabs, whose valleys are fertile garden spots. It ranks in statistics as one of the most productive spots in all Persia, but young readers will find their chief interest in the fact that it contains Mount Ararat, which gave Noah his first shelter, according to the accepted narrative. The erection of Azerbaijan as a buffer state brings the remote past and the immediate present together in a way which may also awaken the interest of those who have moved past the years of youthful curiosity.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Merely a Good Story.

Wars produce many stories of fiction, some of which the oftener they are told the more they are believed to be true. The Civil war was no exception to this rule, and the story of the apple tree is one of these fictions based on a slight foundation of fact. There was, indeed, an apple orchard on one side of the hill occupied by the Confederate forces. Running diagonally up the hill was a wagon road, which, at one point, ran very near one of the trees, so that the wheels of the vehicles had on that side cut off the roots of the tree, leaving a little embankment. General Hancock, of my staff, reported to me that when he first met General Lee he was sitting on this embankment, with his feet in the road below, and his back resting against the tree. The story had no other foundation than that. Like many other good stories, it would be very good if it was only true.—Memphis of Ulysses S. Grant.

Map-Furnishing Tree.

In Canada and eastern United States the larch, a sturdy tree, which belongs to the pine family, often grows 50 or 60 feet high and is generally known as larchknack, while in the Central States it is called tamarack. The European variety is even taller and has longer leaves which don beautiful autumn tints before falling.

On account of its long, tapering form, the tree is extremely useful for masts in sailing vessels, telegraph poles, and a variety of purposes, and as it is common from the Arctic circle to the United States, it is easily found for the special use for which it is adapted.

Monarch's Pleasure Ground.

A buried garden has been discovered at Pooma, India. In excavating the site of an eighteenth-century palace, where a public park is to be laid out, an elaborate ancient garden was discovered. One side consists of three terraces at different levels, with foundations and reservoirs, after the fashion of the celebrated Shalimar gardens of Kashmir and Lahore. The entire system of fountains and reservoirs is constructed by well-made pipes and ducts of pure copper. On the top of the platform an enormous fountain, circular in shape, fashioned after a lotus flower, and having over 300 jets, was discovered.

Good Luck!

By Evelyn Lee

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Angus Joyce stood reading over the bill of fare of a cheap restaurant posted on its street window. He calculated, fumbled the single coin in his pocket and started toward the open door.

A foot away was a young man thin and poorly clad.

The manly impulse of helpfulness and generosity to Joyce's nature came to the surface. He linked his arm in that of the invalid and said genially: "I have just enough for two portions of that plate dinner. Will you join me?"

"You—you understand—" stammered the other.

"That we are probably in the same boat, hungry?" intimated Joyce gently. "Oh, yes! It's my last half dollar, but I shall enjoy sharing it with one in somewhat harder lines, and he touched the hand that leaned heavily on the cane. Let me play the penny philanthropist. It may change my luck."

"It will bring you good luck, yes," spoke the other solemnly. "Take my prophecy, and I shall forget you in a hurry," and then, gentlemen both, they discussed the plain but simple meal as enjoyably as though it was a royal banquet.

"You are the first real man I have met in a long time. Will you give me your address? I may be able to remember your goodness in time to come," said the beneficiary.

"I have none," replied Joyce promptly. "The truth is, unless I get work today I can hardly return to my lady."

"I have a shelter, it is humble, poor, but paid for up to Saturday night. Let me pen it down for you. Promise me to share it with me if a park bench is facing you."

"I agree," pledged Joyce, and they parted.

Joyce had a number of prospects. The failure of a firm where he had held a lucrative position deprived him of some money he had invested with them, and his salary for an entire month. He had sought a new position but it was in the vacation season.

At a street car intersection he found a nickel, invested it in some cheap rolls and betook himself to a little park. It began to rain. He traveled from shelter to shelter. Chancing to note a number of a doorway he had entered he discerned that he had reached the address of "Robert Page."

Joyce through inquiry was directed to a wretched room in the attic. A candle burned, but the apartment had no tenant at the present time. Joyce sat down, glad to rest. Then his eye fell upon a table. He could not help but notice there a newspaper clipping. It read:

"Winston Page, 501 Ithaca terrace, will be tendered a banquet at the Metropole by his banker associates this evening. He leaves for Europe with his daughter on the seventh."

Beside this was a written sheet and an envelope. At that moment Robert Page entered the room.

"You!" he cried in accents of joy. "It seems you are always to be of service to me. Friend, more than that—brother, my whole future depends upon the delivery of a letter by nine o'clock tonight. I have no money to employ a messenger."

"Command me, as always," announced Joyce cheerily.

"There is the address," said Page, and he placed the letter in an envelope. "Miss Alvera Page, 501 Ithaca terrace." Wait until after nine, for by then—a person who might question you will have left the house."

It was well after nine when Joyce reached a residence on an exclusive street. Its front door stood open. He penetrated the vestibule. In the hall, lying flat upon the floor, bound and gagged, was a liveried servant. Joyce surprised something wrong. He released the man. "What's the trouble?" he asked rapidly.

"Looters. They have forced my young mistress to take them to the parlour where the jewel cases are."

The released captive led Joyce into a library, tore open a wall case and provided both with weapons.

"You remain below and telephone for the police," directed Joyce and he stole up the stairs. He glanced through the open doorway of a lighted room. In a chair over which hovered a lurid rufous with a pistol crunched a girl whose beauty was dimmed with the pallor of a terrible dread. Looming into a sack the opulent contents of a brass bound chest was a second ruffian. His weapon lay upon a stand. With a quick dash Joyce possessed himself of the pistol and, doubly armed, covered both of the baffled burglars.

It was not until the police had disarmed the thieves of their booty and taken them in charge that Joyce found an opportunity to deliver the letter to Miss Page. In a flutter of wild agitation she at once insisted that he take her to her brother.

Amid the squalor of the wretched tenement room Angus Joyce witnessed the restoration to his family of a reckless youth, a wanderer from the home roof. His part in the same, his rescue of the Page diamonds and plate from the looters made him three staunch friends.

And Robert Page had called him "brother," and when a year had gone by and Angus Joyce had regained his old social position there was reason to believe that the promise of good fortune was to come to him in complete.

Education in China. Literates among the people of South China is greater than among those of the north. Claims are advanced in Canton that nearly all the children of Cantonese parentage, except those of the large boat population, can read; whereas in the north it is unusual to find a family the children of which are all placed in school.
